The Boundary between the British and the Russian Empires on the North-West Coast of America.—Memoir by the St. Pancras Committee, London.

At a meeting of this Committee, Monday, November 22, 1853, a letter from Sir George Simpson, Governor of Hudson's Bay, having been read,

Resolved—That a Memoir be drawn up on the Boundary on the North-West Coast of America between the British and Russian Empires.

At a further meeting, February 15, 1859, it was resolved to adopt the following Memoir.

The year just closed has witnessed the erection of a British colony on the confines of Russia. Such a proximity might have been expected to awaken rivalry, if not vigilance, and to excite interest if not alarm. It has scarcely called forth a remark either in Parliament or the Press. A glance at the map shows, however, that in this case Russia has not participated, but that she has spent as much care and thought on the North West Coast of America as upon any of those portions of the earth where she has struggled for dominion or for existence. That place will show the sea-board in the possession of Russia and maritime England shut into the interior, and by the session, not of the interior to England, but of the coast to Russia. This coast, extending for three hundred miles, Russia, having secured, does not occupy. The names on the map are familiar and significant—Cros Sound, and the Gulf of Wales Island, Mount Fairweather and Admiralty Bay.

In 1822 a ukase was issued from St. Petersburg, desiring the North Pacific Squadron, and forbidding any vessel to approach within one hundred miles of the coast. The ground taken was Russia's possession of the coasts on the American side down to 51° north latitude, and on the Asiatic to 42°. This demand created in the United States alarm and indignation. The Government would have given way, but the people would not, and the project was set aside by the traders to that coast putting guns on board their vessels.

On the 17th of April, 1824 a treaty was concluded between Russia and the United States.

Art. I. Forbade either party to resort to any establishment of the other, without the permission of the Governor or Commander.

Art. II. Forbade the Americans to make settlements north, or the Russians, south of 54° 40'.

On the 25th of February, 1825, a similar Treaty was concluded between Great Britain and Russia.

Articles I and II were the same as in the American Treaty.

Art. III. The line of demarcation between the possessions of the high contracting parties, upon the coast of the continent, and the islands of America to the north-west, shall be drawn in the manner following:

Commencing from the southernmost point of the Island called Prince of Wales Island, which point lies in the parallel of 54° 40' north latitude, and between 131° and 132° west longitude (middle of Greenwich), the said line shall ascend to the north, along the channel called Portland Channel, as far as the point of the continent where it strikes 56° north latitude, and from the said mentioned point, the line of demarcation shall follow the summit of the mountains situated parallel to the coast, as far as the point of intersection of 141° west longitude (the same meridian), and finally, from the said point of intersection, the said meridian line of 141°, in its prolongation as far as the Frozen Ocean, shall form the limit between the British possessions and the line of coast which is to belong to Russia, as above mentioned, shall be formed by a line parallel to the windings of the coast, which shall never exceed the distance of ten marine leagues therefrom.

Art. IV. With reference to the line of demarcation laid down in the preceding article, it is understood—That the line called the Prince of Wales Island shall belong wholly to Russia.

Art. V. That wherever the summit of the mountains shall extend in a direction parallel to the coast, the said line shall follow the said mountains, and the line of coast which is to belong to Russia, as above mentioned, shall be formed by a line parallel to the windings of the coast, which shall never exceed the distance of ten marine leagues therefrom.

Art. VI. This treaty was negotiated by Sir Stratford Canning, new Lord Stratford de Redcliffe. He was first sent to the United States in 1820, and was appointed plenipotentiary in London in November, 1823, for negotiating with the United States concerning all the questions in dispute bet. the two countries, including that of the North West Boundary. That treaty, however, was not ratified. In April, 1824, the American Treaty with Russia was signed, and in November of the same year he was sent to St. Petersburg, when he signed the treaty above quoted from, on the 25th of February, 1825.

Thus, Russia had demanded to close a sea whose coast was not hers, and obtained the coast as the price of the surrender of the claim assumed to accrue from its possession. She was equally powerless to obtain either demand by arms. By this encroachment, however, she gained much more than a position on the coast of America. The possession of New Archangel, in Siberia, is one of great importance when taken in relation with her acquisition of the Amoor and her encroachments in the northernmost of the Islands of Japan, but a more immediate gain was the quarrel settled between England and the United States consequent on the treaties with these powers.

Russia had positively recognized England's claim to the territory south of 54° 40', but she had constructively recognized that territory as belonging to the United States. Such a suggestion was quite sufficient to give to their lost of territory a definite aim, and when the treaty was once for the settlement of the boundary between the Pacific territories of Great Britain and the United States, the cry of the latter was not for treaty rights, or even maritime or territorial advantages, but for the recovery of the territory which was theirs by right, "40° or right," that is to say, the limits suggested by Russia. The treaty of 1846, however, gave to Great Britain all to the north of 49°, and Vancouver's Island

Had the American claim been carried out, England would have possessed, but one opening to the Pacific, namely, the Simpson river. A Russian fort would have threatened the entrance on the north, whilst an American one threatened it on the south.

The strip of coast in the possession of Russia is, however, for the most part actually in British occupation. The whole of the British territory in that quarter, up to the time of the establishment of British Columbia, was the management of the Hudson's Bay Company, and in 1829 they took a lease from the Russian Fur Company of the Russian coast as high up as Cross Sound, in latitude 52°. Sir George Simpson, the Governor of Hudson's Bay, says:—

"The British territory runs along inland from the coast about thirty miles; the Russian territory runs along the coast; we have the right of navigation through the rivers to the heart of the interior country. A mis-understanding existed upon that point in the first place; we were about to establish a post on the mouth of the river, which led to very serious difficulties between the Russian American Company and ourselves; we had a long correspondence, and, to stand against the recurrence of these difficulties, it was agreed that we should leave this margin of coast, and pay them a rent."

It adds that they have the whole care of this territory, in which there are no Russian officers.

In 1851, England was at war with Russia. It might have been expected that the Russian would have sought to recover the territory we had so unaccountably lost. But this was not done, but, on the contrary, an arrangement was made to protect Russia. Sir George Simpson, in his evidence before the House of Commons, says:—

Q. 1738. Mr. Labouchere: During the late war which existed between Russia and England, it is known that some arrangement was made between you and the Russians, by which you agreed not to molest one another.

Yes, such an arrangement was made.

1739. By the two companies?—Yes; and Government confirmed the arrangement.

1740. You agreed that on neither side should there be any molestation or interference with the trade of the different parties?—Yes.

1741. And I understand that was strictly observed during the whole war?—Yes.

1742. Mr. Bell: Which Government confirmed the arrangement?—The Russian or the English, or both?—Both Governments.

The connexion between the Russian Fur Company and the Hudson's Bay Company, that is to say, between the Russian and the English Government, is now avowed to have subsisted in time of war, and one of the Ministry appointed to carry on that war with vigor and energy, and one of the important positions held before a Parliamentary Committee. The mischief does not, however, end even here. According to Sir George Simpson, it appears that in making out the lease of Russian territory, a very important position on the British side of the boundary has been recognized as Russian.

The occupation of the territory included in the lease is thus brought out, and again by Mr. Labouchere:—

FALSE REPORT.—The report of the meeting published last evening in the Times is so grossly incorrect in many particulars, that it scarcely deserves notice. It says: "A motion of adjournment was then made, in order to carry out the substance of Capt. King's amendment, which was carried." The extract is an absurdity in itself; for the appointment of a committee would have carried out the object of the motion. It is however really an unmitigated perversion of the truth; and we dare the Times to offer a solitary proof. Mr. J. D. Carroll moved the adjournment, and Mr. Hicks seconded it; and the names of both these gentlemen are found attached to the resolutions presented to the members for Victoria. That itself is proof sufficient. What reliance then can be placed in the statement of the Times, when the truth is so grossly perverted? Mr. De Cosmos is also charged with having said that the mover of the amendment "is a paid servant of the H. B. Company." This is as far from truth as the above. What Mr. D. said was substantially as follows:—"This is a Hudson Bay Company move to stop an expression of public opinion. However defective the resolutions may be, a reconsideration is useless, as the House would pass the bill before it could in that case hear from the people. But if the resolutions passed by the meeting were made law, then the electors would elevate independent men to the House who would not be so corrupt as to impose taxes on the country to pay £300 a year sinecures like that held by the mover of the motion."

LAW-MAKERS SHOULD NOT BE LAW-BREAKERS.—A Proclamation was issued lately by His Excellency the Governor of British Columbia, that 100 feet should be the length of a quartz claim. Since then from Mr. W. Ballou, we learn that at His Excellency, has given away 800 yards of the vein discovered near Fort Hope! Where is the statute giving authority to do this? If a law is made, and then a few days afterward violated by giving away half a mile of quartz instead of 100 feet, and that by the law-maker, we ask what security is there for property? The same rule, if applied, would confiscate the property of any of the inhabitants. Besides we cannot see the use of appointing Gold Commissioners if His Excellency can travel through the country and give away the industrial resources as he pleases. The intention may have been to reward the discoverer, which is all very well; but we contend that it should be done constitutionally. We expect the Crown officers, therefore, to investigate this question; enforce the law, and make it an established principle that law-makers must not with impunity be law-breakers.

NEW GOVERNOR.—It is currently reported that a new Governor, named Howe, is shortly expected. If correct, it is probably the Hon. Joseph Howe, of Halifax, Nova Scotia. From a speech made by him some months ago, we were led to understand that he expected a governorship. He would be the right man in the right place.

EXCLUSIVE POSSESSION.—When Justice DeCourcy returned to San Juan the other day, the American authorities would not allow his baggage to land. He communicated the fact to Capt. Prevost, of the Satellite. He acquainted Col. Casey with the stoppage, and through him Mr. DeCourcy was allowed to land, baggage and all.

The Evidence of Reform.

On Monday evening, C. B. Young and A. Waddington, Esqs. presented the resolutions which were passed at the meeting on Saturday evening and published in our last issue, to the members for Victoria: Messrs. Yates Pemberton and McKay, with the following addition:

The preceding eleven articles of this resolution having, after a lengthy serious discussion, been agreed to by a decided majority at a public meeting held for the purpose of discussing them, they are confidently submitted, as the sentiments of the people, notwithstanding the attempt made at the meeting and elsewhere to prevent the expression of them reaching the Assembly in time for the object proposed.

The articles to which objections were taken as above, are: "4. No voter shall be allowed to vote in more than one district." "11. The duration of the Assembly shall not be longer than two years from the day of election."

Above are eighty-five names representing the real elements of the country's prosperity. No better evidence can be given in favor of reform. Success has already perched on their banner.

Why are there no funds to liquidate the debts against the Police Department? The Policemen have not been paid for months. Besides, other parties want their bills paid.

THEIR TITLE GOOD.

EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST:—In consequence of the statement made in the House of Assembly to-day by Mr. Pemberton, that the settlers on Salt Spring Island held the land merely on sufferance, and not in possession, I waited on the Attorney General. And after showing him the authority under which those parties have taken up the land, he is of opinion, and authorizes me to state, that the parties settling under such authority are in legal possession of the land under the conditions of payment at the time mentioned, and consequently can vote by virtue of such possession after the term of four months' residence in the Colony.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

MONDAY, OCT. 3.

The members present were the Speaker, and Messrs. Yates, Pemberton, Skinner, and McKay.

PROTECTING BRIDGES.

Mr. Skinner introduced a bill for the protection of Wooden Bridges in Vancouver Island and dependencies. Its provisions would render it unlawful to cross a bridge "faster than a foot pace." If more rapidly a penalty of £5 will be incurred. Passed a second reading.

VIOLATION OF THE PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE.

Mr. Skinner objected to going into committee on the Registration of Voters Bill, inasmuch as the bill was originated by the Council, when it should have originated in the Assembly. The bill imposed a tax of 4s. 2d. on each voter, and besides it appropriated the money so raised. This House only had the right to tax the people. The Council had consequently violated the privileges of the House. He would therefore move that it be thrown out.

Mr. Pemberton objected and did not think it a money bill.

Mr. McKay thought it a useless waste of time to throw it out.

Mr. Yates concurred with Mr. Skinner. The bill had a different title from that sent up. The House sent up one bill to the Council, and three were returned. It taxed the people, and as he was jealous of the privileges of the House, which it was their duty to guard. It ought to be thrown out.

On division, Messrs. Yates and Skinner were for throwing out the bill; and Messrs. McKay and Pemberton for retaining it.

The Speaker said: It is no use occupying time; I have the casting vote. I am jealous of the privileges of the House; but the bill originated with the Assembly, as I wrote it. The Council merely divided the Franchise Bill sent up, into three, and this was a part of it. I therefore will give the casting vote against throwing it out.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the bill for the registration of voters, and the bill to district the Colony and allot representatives. Mr. Skinner wanted Nanaimo united with Salt Spring Island. This was opposed by Mr. McKay, and finally lost.

Mr. Yates moved that the town of Victoria have three members, instead of two. This was lost; and after some clerical alterations in the bills, the House resumed its sitting, and then adjourned till Tuesday, at 11 A. M.

TUESDAY, Oct. 4th.

All the members were present. The minutes of the preceding meeting were read, when a discussion took place about the Registration of Voters Bill. The Speaker stated that he had made a mistake yesterday, in ruling that the Registration of Voters Bill was the same as sent up to the Council. He now treated it as a new bill. The minutes were adopted.

BRIDGE BILL.

The bill for the protection of wooden bridges was read a second time, and referred to Committee.

FRANCHISE BILL.

The House went into Committee on the Order of the day. There was a brief discussion again on the Registration of Voters Bill, Messrs. Yates and Skinner saying it was a money bill, and ought to be thrown out, as a violation of the privileges of the House.

VOTER'S QUALIFICATION.

Mr. Yates moved that the time for voters to be in the country prior to election, be three months.

The Speaker was entirely opposed to the motion. He would retain the six months, and was favorable to a longer period.

Mr. Pemberton concurred with the Hon. Speaker.

Mr. McKay said that if the six months were retained, the Chemainus settlers would not be entitled to vote; but three months would entitle them to that privilege.

Mr. Pemberton: But they have no legal title to the land there—were mere squatters—were there more on suffrage than anything else. The Council was very kind to them to allow them to settle there without paying anything. No necessity, then, to alter the time for them.

Mr. McKay would support Mr. Yates' motion, if he made the time four months. Mr. Yates agreed to withdraw three and substitute four months. Passed.

The Speaker offered an amendment that it be four months prior to registration of voters, which passed.

LAWYERS, &c., TO VOTE.

The clause allowing lawyers, doctors and graduates to vote, passed without opposition.

RENTAL QUALIFICATION SIX MONTHS.

The Speaker moved that all voters qualified by rental, should have six months' possession of the property.

Mr. Yates would amend by making it two months prior to registration of voters. The Speaker was entirely opposed to so short a time for holding property. God made the country; but the devil made the town. Motion passed.

RENTAL OF TWELVE POUNDS.

Mr. Yates moved that an annual rental of £12 will entitle to vote, with possession the necessary time.

Mr. McKay. Rents had fallen very much since the bill was introduced, and he therefore supported the motion. Passed.

SIX MONTHS FREEHOLD.

Mr. Yates moved that possession of freehold be two months prior to registration.

The Speaker and Mr. McKay opposed the motion, and were favorable to three months. Motion lost.

FREEHOLDERS.

The Speaker moved that the twenty acres of land be in the same district. Agreed to.

Mr. McKay thought that as twenty acres of land would qualify a voter, there was no good reason for compelling the owner of other real estate to possess property to the value of £100, as in the bill. He would therefore move that real estate to the value of £20 be substituted. The freehold qualification would then be equal.

Mr. Yates seconded it.

Mr. Pemberton thought £20 small enough. If reduced, it would allow men to be elected who would probably tax the country heavily.

Mr. McKay said they would then tax their own property equally with others.

The Speaker was perfectly ashamed of the House for changing their minds from a £20 qualification. He (as understood) would soar high, and spurn the vermin that crawled at his feet.

On the motion being put, the Chairman said, I support the motion. It is carried.

The Speaker. Did you say you support it? I am perfectly ashamed of it.

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE.

The clause rendering it necessary for those who had become the subjects of a foreign power to take an oath before the Chief Justice prior to election, was opposed by Mr. Yates, on the ground of injustice. They came here not supposing there was any law against them. He would move it be one month previous to election. Lost.

DISQUALIFICATION.

The disqualifications of voters are to be the same as in Great Britain.

The Speaker read a copy of the law which excludes all revenue officers, magistrates, &c. He said aliens, idiots, and lunatics were scratched out. It certainly could not have affected the Council?

MEMBERS' QUALIFICATION.

It was agreed that a member must be three months in the country; own £300 worth of real estate; swear to it at the polls before election that he is qualified.

Mr. Yates was in favor of a member getting his qualification any time before election; but his motion was lost.

RE-ELECTION.

The Speaker offered an amendment, compelling members who took a salary office to resign their seats, and he re-elected before they be entitled to sit in the House. Carried.

The election is to be simultaneous only in a district—not over all the country; and the House of Assembly to be elected for three years.

A few unimportant amendments were made, when the House adjourned, to meet to-morrow, at 10 A. M.

Washington.

The steamer Julia arrived yesterday from ports on Puget Sound with 23 head of cattle. Mr. Lowell, Purser, has kindly favored us with the Pioneer Democrat and Herald, from which we clip the following items.

Mr. James Parker, military expressman, had arrived at Olympia for Salt Lake and brings the intelligence from the plains that there were 5000 emigrants on their way to Oregon, Washington and California.

Some 300 wagons were at Grand Ronde on the frontier. Some of the emigrants were in a starving condition.

Five hundred and fifty wagons had arrived in the Cascades in Washington Territory. Mr. Parker attributes to the Mormons the depredations committed on emigrants by the Indians during the last three or four years.

Two Pioneer and Democrat of the 30th says that Gen. Harney seized San Juan because Mr. Dallas, Director of the H. B. Co. demanded, with threats, of Cutler, the American, $100 for the "pig" killed by him. Although the Island was actually taken possession of because an American killed a Hudson Bay Company's pig!—(taking the whole for the pig—is certainly piggyish!—Ed.)

Mr. Griffin, H. B. Co's agent at San Juan has notified the Land Office at Olympia that he claims a pre-emption for the farm occupied by him at San Juan. The Pioneer recommends him to absolve his allegiance first. (This he is said to have done already.)

The Pioneer calls on its readers to support the Patriotic move of Gen. Harney, as regards San Juan, and hopes the Cabinet at Washington will do the same. From appearances we conclude our American friends look upon the seizure of the island as a grand fizzle.

To Wells, Fargo & Co. and Freeman & Co., thanks for exchanges.

It is rumored that a public meeting will come off to-night.
